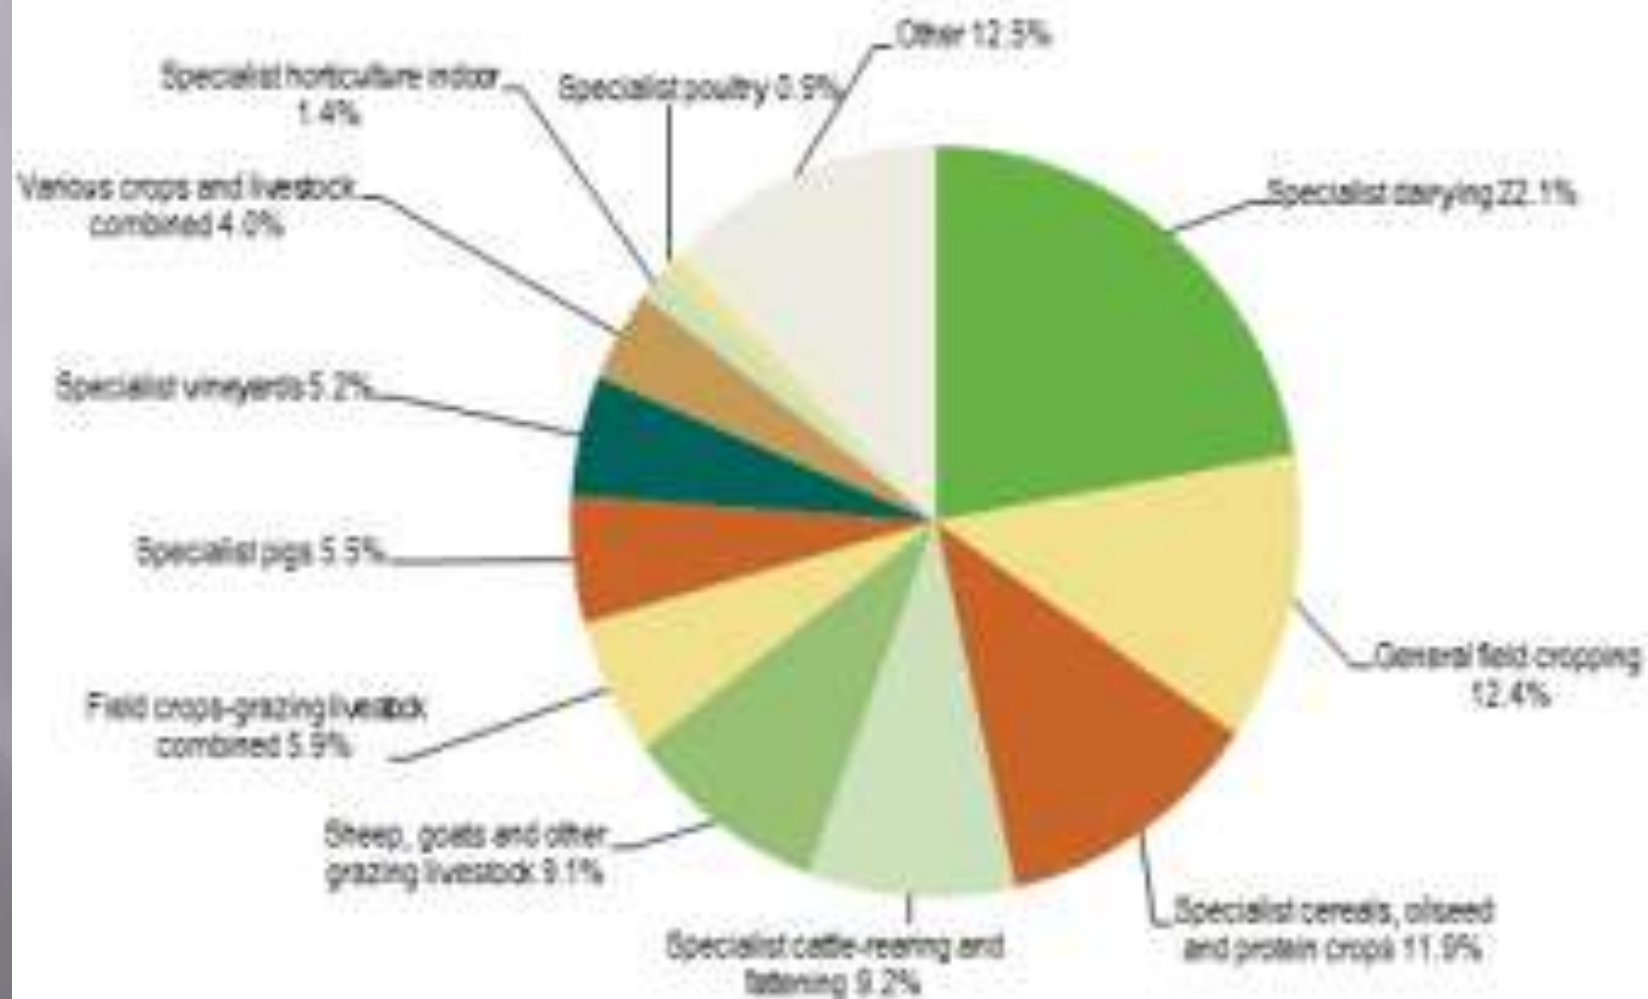

Plate 54. Lutzow's Free Corps, Jäger, 1813

Probably the largest, and certainly the most famous, of the Free Corps, this "regiment" consisted of 3 infantry battalions (4 musketeer companies and one jäger each—the 2nd Battalion had a "Tyrol volunteer jäger detachment" in place of one musketeer company); 5 squadrons (2 Uhlans, 2 hussars, one mounted jäger) and 8 light guns (half horse, half foot artillery).

All units, except the hussars and the Tyrol jägers (who wore grey, faced green), had this same general uniform. Shako devices varied, but usually were hidden by shako covers. Lance pennons reportedly were red and black.
